

Participants interested in assessment and evaluation of their program(s) and/or interested in NADE Certification will be able to complete the NADE Certification Training at this institute.

NADE Certification is offered for components of a learning assistance or developmental education program. Programs eligible for certification are: Tutoring Services, Course-Based Learning Assistance (course-based study groups such as the Supplemental Instruction model), and Developmental Coursework. To be certified, a program component must demonstrate it utilizes practices found in quality services and programs by completing the application process. This includes:

- A summary of the results of a systematic self-study using the NADE Self-Evaluation Guides, 2nd Edition (2009).
- Submitting evaluation data (baseline data, action plans, comparative data, results and analyses) that confirms the program component is using systematic, continuous assessment and evaluation to demonstrate that it is meeting its goals and objectives.
- Providing the theoretical framework upon which the program is based.
- Other requirements as specified in the individual Program Component Application Packets for which the program is applying.

This workshop will satisfy the training requirement for the application process for NADE Certification and will be conducted by members of the NADE Certification Council. Individuals who intend to pursue certification, as well as those who want to learn how to prepare their programs to become eligible for certification, are encouraged to take advantage of this training. The workshop is most beneficial for those directly involved in conducting the program component applying for certification and responsible for coordinating the application process.
